Dear Sirs,

As a passionate resident of Wales I would like to make it known that I consider the Senedd reform proposals to be inappropriate.

The process of increasing the number of AMs would be a non-democratic procedure, thus leading to one party or coalition having the majority control. This is not good for the democracy of our beautiful country and will lead to much or further distrust in the whole voting system.

As you are well aware the country is in a considerable amount of debt; approx £600 million. It has already been reported that vital services, including mental health, spending are to be cut to help balance the books, together with the non-democratic roll out of the speed reduction in many areas costing around £33 million. I find that the reported £87 million to increase the Senedd numbers would therefore be inappropriate and unjustified, when the money could be better spent on many other vital services that have received much reduced Senedd funding. This also would lead to potential loss of life as our NHS is at breaking point and ambulances are held up in A&E departments because of the lack of NHS staff in hospitals and the lack of medical staff to attend to emergencies.

Lastly with local councils having to reduce their services, an increase of council tax year on year over the inflation rate throughout Wales and also the proposed tourism tax to be brought in by 2027, I feel rural communities that survive on tourism trade and that the implementation of such a tax would have a detrimental impact on not only people's lives but also much needed income to the area.

I therefore feel it would be unacceptable for more money to be spent on the Senedd reform proposal at the cost of lives and communities.

Yours faithfully
